WARNERS TRACK

Warners Track will see you climbing the Great Western Tiers — with a soundtrack of birdsong and creek murmurs to inspire you.

About halfway up the track, you'll catch your first view of the majestic escarpment, as the nature around you transitions from dogwood to myrtle, sassafras and waratah. As you get closer to the top, you'll be treated to great views of pools and cascades, as well as two timber bridges.

The literal and metaphorical "highpoint" of the walk is the escarpment's edge, 1,150m above sea level, which offers breath-taking panoramic views.

The track is located within a Tasmanian Wilderness World Heritage Area — a testament to the area's striking beauty and ecological importance.

This walk will get you up close and personal with the tall eucalypt forest that grows across the Great Western Tiers. You'll also see magnificent tree ferns, moss-covered forest floors and colourful fungi.

Once you've reached the end of the path, you'll find yourself at a gorgeous, secluded waterfall — but you'll also pass small cascades on the way there!

The falls are part of the Tasmanian Wilderness World Heritage Area — a testament to the area's striking beauty and ecological importance.

DEVIL'S GULLET

This walk is famous for its lookout platform, which looks over one of the most striking vistas in all of Tasmania — from the prism-like Dolerite cliffs to distant, towering peaks like Cradle Mountain. Best of all, you'll reach this iconic view after only a short walk from the car park.

A bushfire swept through the area in 2016, so on the way to the lookout, you'll pass under the eerie, outstretched limbs (and by the scorched trunks) of dead snow gums — but the brush beneath is returning to life, and you'll likely spot curious pademelons watching you walk.

This walk is located in Devil's Gullet State Reserve, a Tasmanian Wilderness World Heritage Area — a testament to its striking beauty and ecological importance.

The drive to the walk is spectacular in its own right — you'll pass through Mersey Forest, where myrtle and tree fern border the road.

This trail will see you visiting all eight of Westbury's iconic sheet metal-based sculptural artworks that each depict important figures from the village's storied history.

To learn more about the Irish clergy, convicts, soldiers and others depicted in the artworks, ask for brochures at the Meander Valley Visitor Centre, Meander Valley Council, or the Westbury Post Office.

The walk passes by many historical buildings that formed part of a 1800s garrison that was nearly chosen to be the capital of Tasmania!

The trail is a level, easy walk that's wheelchair accessible — so we welcome people of all abilities to experience it!

TULAMPANGA / ALUM CLIFFS

Tulampanga / Alum Cliffs

Along the path, you'll encounter a large, three-pointed sculpture extending towards Quamby Bluff, Tulampanga / Alum Cliffs Gorge, and Western Bluff, all visible from its vantage point.

From the sculpture, a gentle descent and a set of stairs will take you to the end of the track: a viewing platform offering views of the Mersey River and the Tulampanga / Alum Cliffs Gorge.

As you head towards the viewing platform, keep an eye out for sculptures and pieces by local artists, as well as three interpretive signs that tell the story of the Pallitorre people and the ochre they used, culminating in a poem that can be found at the lookout.

The Mole Creek area, known as Tulampanga by the Pallitorre people, holds millennia of Aboriginal history. This sacred region was also significant for the ochre they mined there.

MORE SHORT WALKS

HIGGS TRACK (TO LADY LAKE HUT)

4hr return | Grade: 3

Cut by grazier Sydney Higgs in 1879, Higgs Track was used to push cattle up the Tiers to the highlands to graze. Restored by the skilled hands of the Mountain Hut Preservation Society and Tasmanian Parks and Wildlife using old Scottish stone-pitching techniques, the trail is magnificent year-round, with blooming fungi in autumn and knee-deep snow in winter. On clear days, look out left-ward across the escarpment to Lady Lake Hut, perched on the plain amongst alpine tarns (pools). Reaching the hut, sit awhile and gaze over the wind swept alpine plains.

WILDWOOD NATURE TRAIL

1hr circuit | Grade: 2

A peaceful, shaded walk through 14 acres of native and European forest. Wander by the tranquil waters of the Meander River in Deloraine while watching out for the many native animals — including the platypus — that call Wildwood home.

MEANDER FALLS

4.5-6hr return | Grade: 4

A challenging walk through temperate rainforest to falls that cascade 130 metres from the lip of the Great Western Tiers.

LIFFEY RIVER RESERVE

1-1.5hr circuit | Grade: 2
