There are no amenities at the walk location. However there are toilet, cafe and accommodation options at nearby Chudleigh, Mole Creek and surrounds.

Grade 2: Suitable for most ages. The track has a hardened or compacted surface that may have a gentle uphill section or sections of occasional steps.

Supervise Children, hazardous cliffs and unprotected track edges. Weather may change quickly. Road can be hazardous during winter due to snow and ice.

Not a hardened bushwalker but keen for a glimpse of the remote alpine world of Tasmania's Central Plateau? Then Devils Gullet is the place for you.

Devils Gullet features a short alpine walk to a lookout platform that overhangs a sheer cliff face. There are magnificent views to Mount Ossa, Barn Bluff, Cradle Mountain and other features across the huge chasm of the Fisher River Valley.

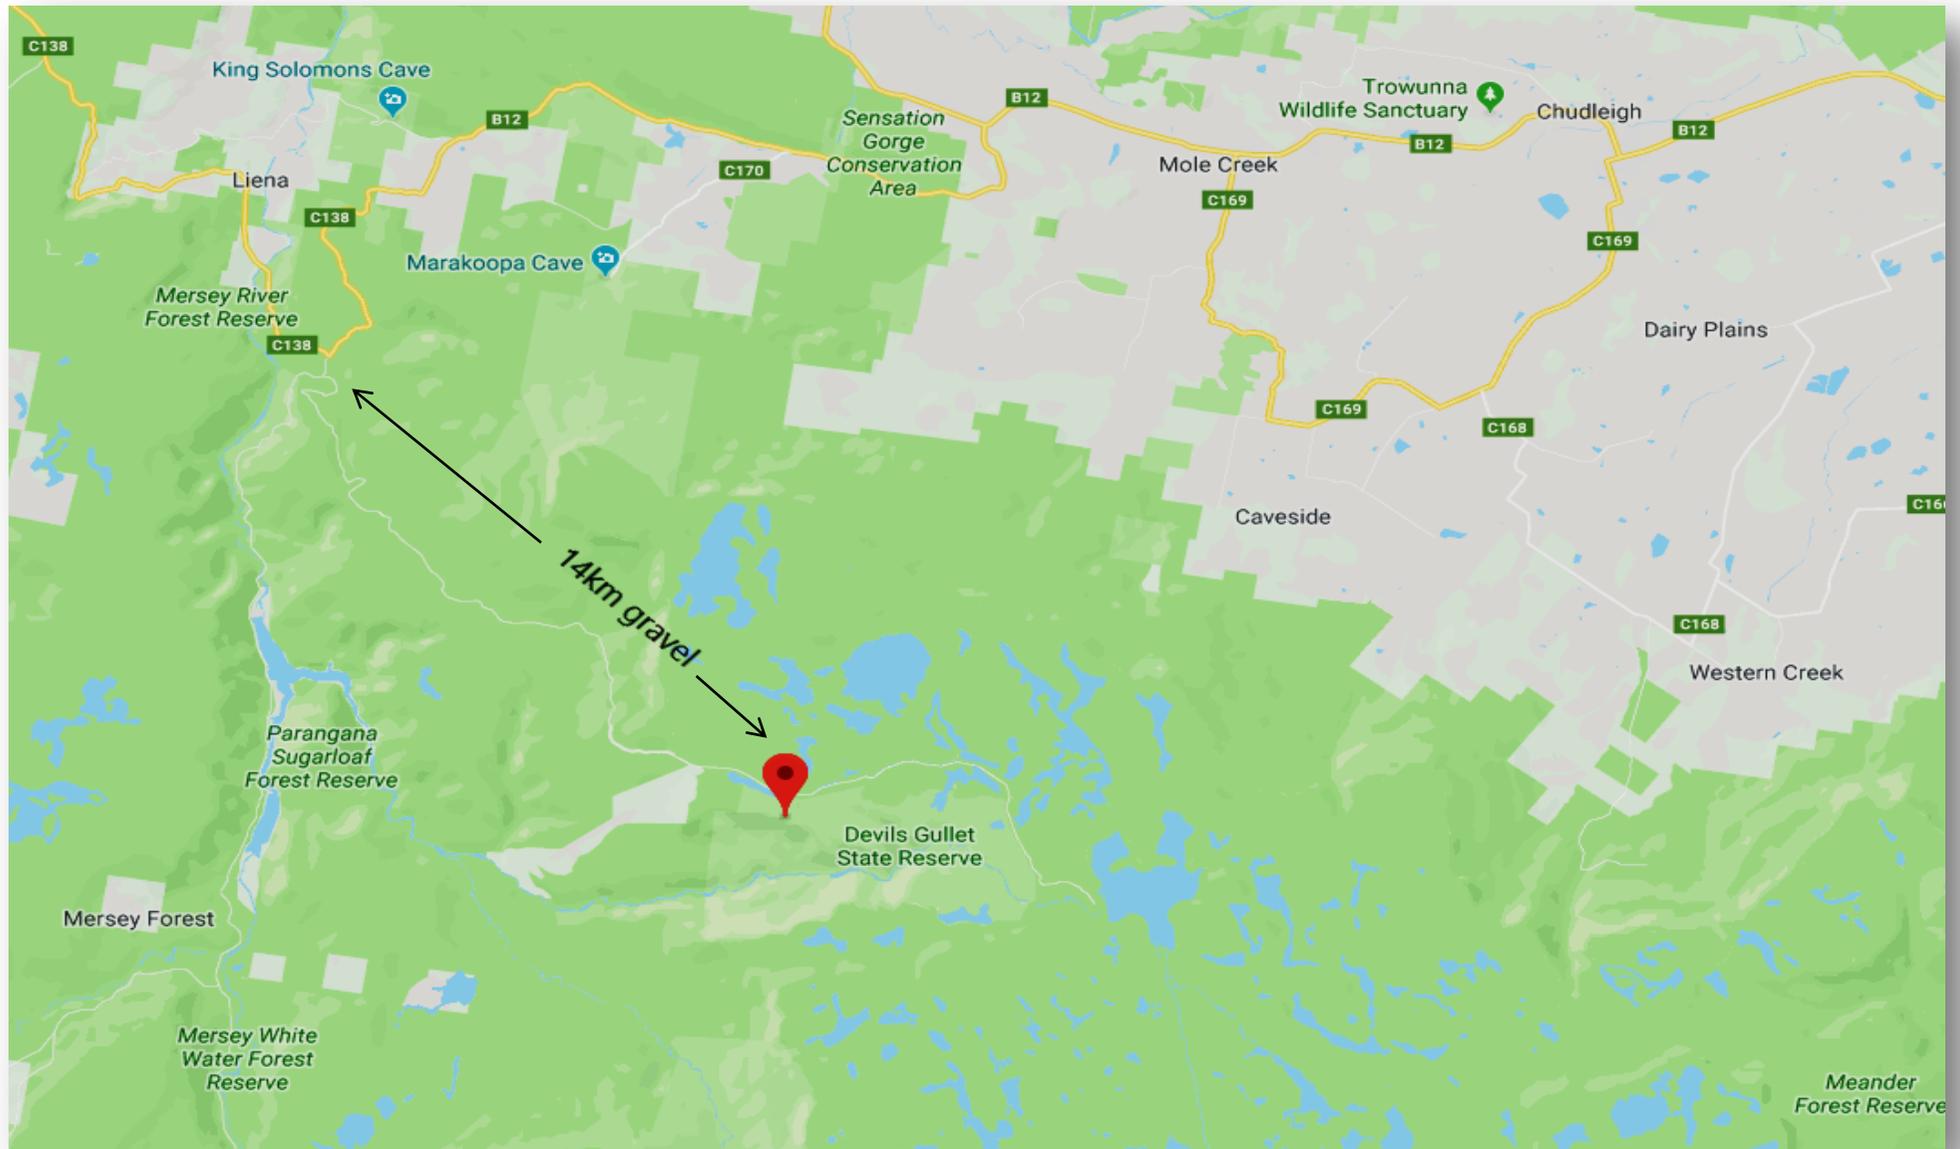

This is an awe inspiring place on a windy day when the dolerite cliffs channel south westerly winds up into the gullet. It is a landscape of rocks and dolerite boulders carved by ice and water moving off the plateau and down into the valley.

The alpine flora surrounding the walk and platform was extensively burnt by bushfire in early 2016, and slow regrowth is occurring.

SAFE WALKING: Plan, be prepared, walk with friends, tell someone where you are going. Consider hiring an EPIRB from Service Tasmania to prepare for emergency events. Make a personal determination as to your fitness and ability to undertake specific walks.
LEAVE NO TRACE: walk on formed tracks, observe all restrictions, dispose of waste properly and leave what you find.
